

languages described in this book (RDF, RDF Schema, SPARQL, OWL2), and you will have built a genuine Semantic Web application: modeling a part of the world in an ontology, using querying to define user-specific views on this ontology, and using web technology to define browsable presentations of such user-specific views.